

Langenbeck-Virchow-Haus Events

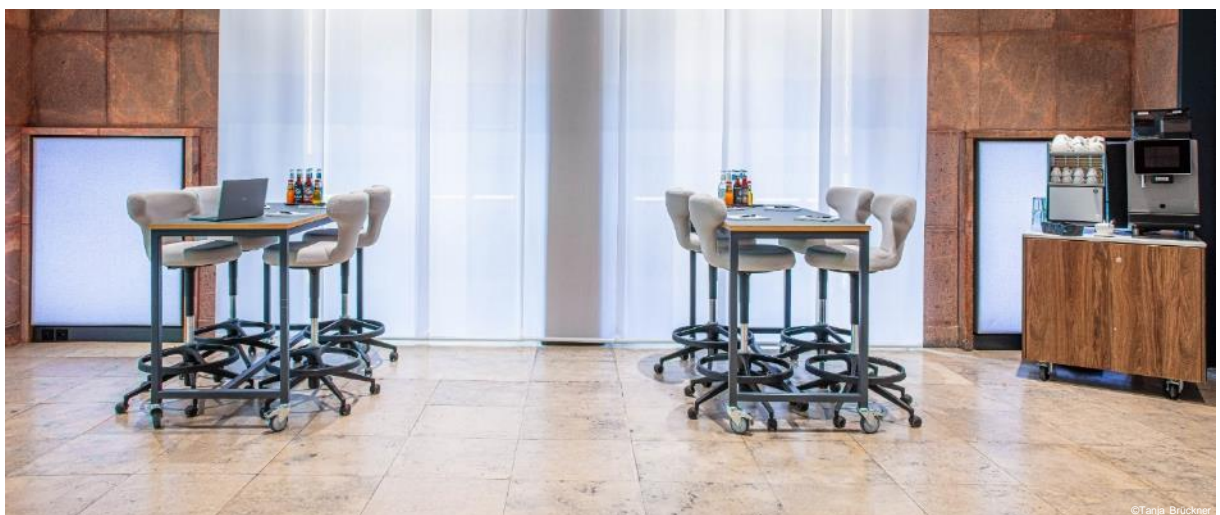

Overview

Since its completion in 1915, the Langenbeck-Virchow-Haus has been a center for knowledge exchange. Spread over five floors, it offers event spaces for up to 500 participants. The event formats are primarily meetings, congresses, and symposia, but also evening receptions or dinners. The house has approximately 145 m² of net exhibition space in the lower three foyers.

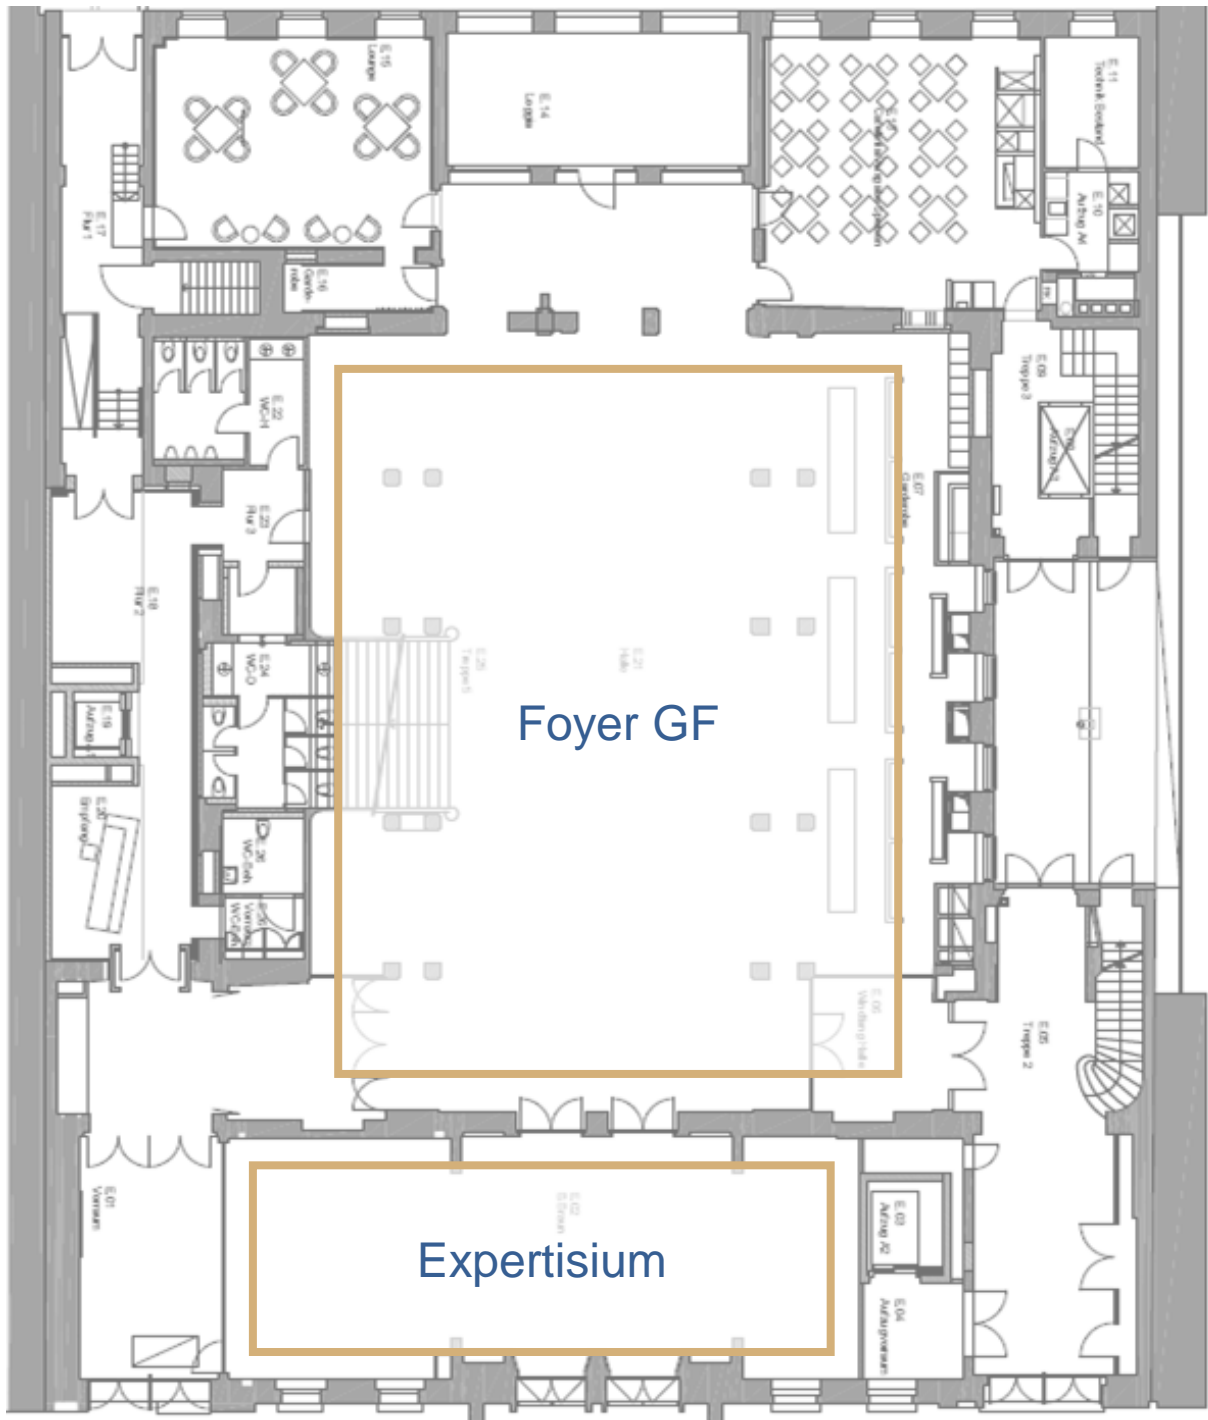

Each room is equipped with at least a projector or a TV screen. The additional equipment varies depending on the room. Wi-Fi is available throughout the house. Upon request, any additional technical equipment (e.g. hybrid, audio, etc.) can be arranged.

4th Floor

Floor Plan | 4th Floor

Foyer | 4th Floor

The Foyer on the 4th floor is not only used for catering breaks, but also as an additional workspace for interactive workshops. Equipped with a seating area, it also forms a quiet, modern area that can serve as a retreat.

✓ Internet: Wi-Fi/LAN

✓ Air conditioning

✓ No daylight

Emil von Behring | 4th Floor

The former archive rooms in the attic of the Langenbeck-Vichow-Haus were extensively converted into two cosy seminar rooms as part of the complete renovation from 2003 to 2005. They offer the perfect surrounding for smaller meetings, seminars or workshops with an informal character.

- ✓ Internet: Wi-Fi/LAN
- ✓ Air conditioning
- ✓ Daylight, darkening possible
- ✓ TV-Screen, perm. installed

Paul Ehrlich | 4th Floor

The second of the two seminar rooms on the 4th floor offers high-quality equipment including a permanently built table for meetings with up to 9 people. This room is particularly suitable for side meetings, (sales) talks, or as a production office in the course of larger congresses.

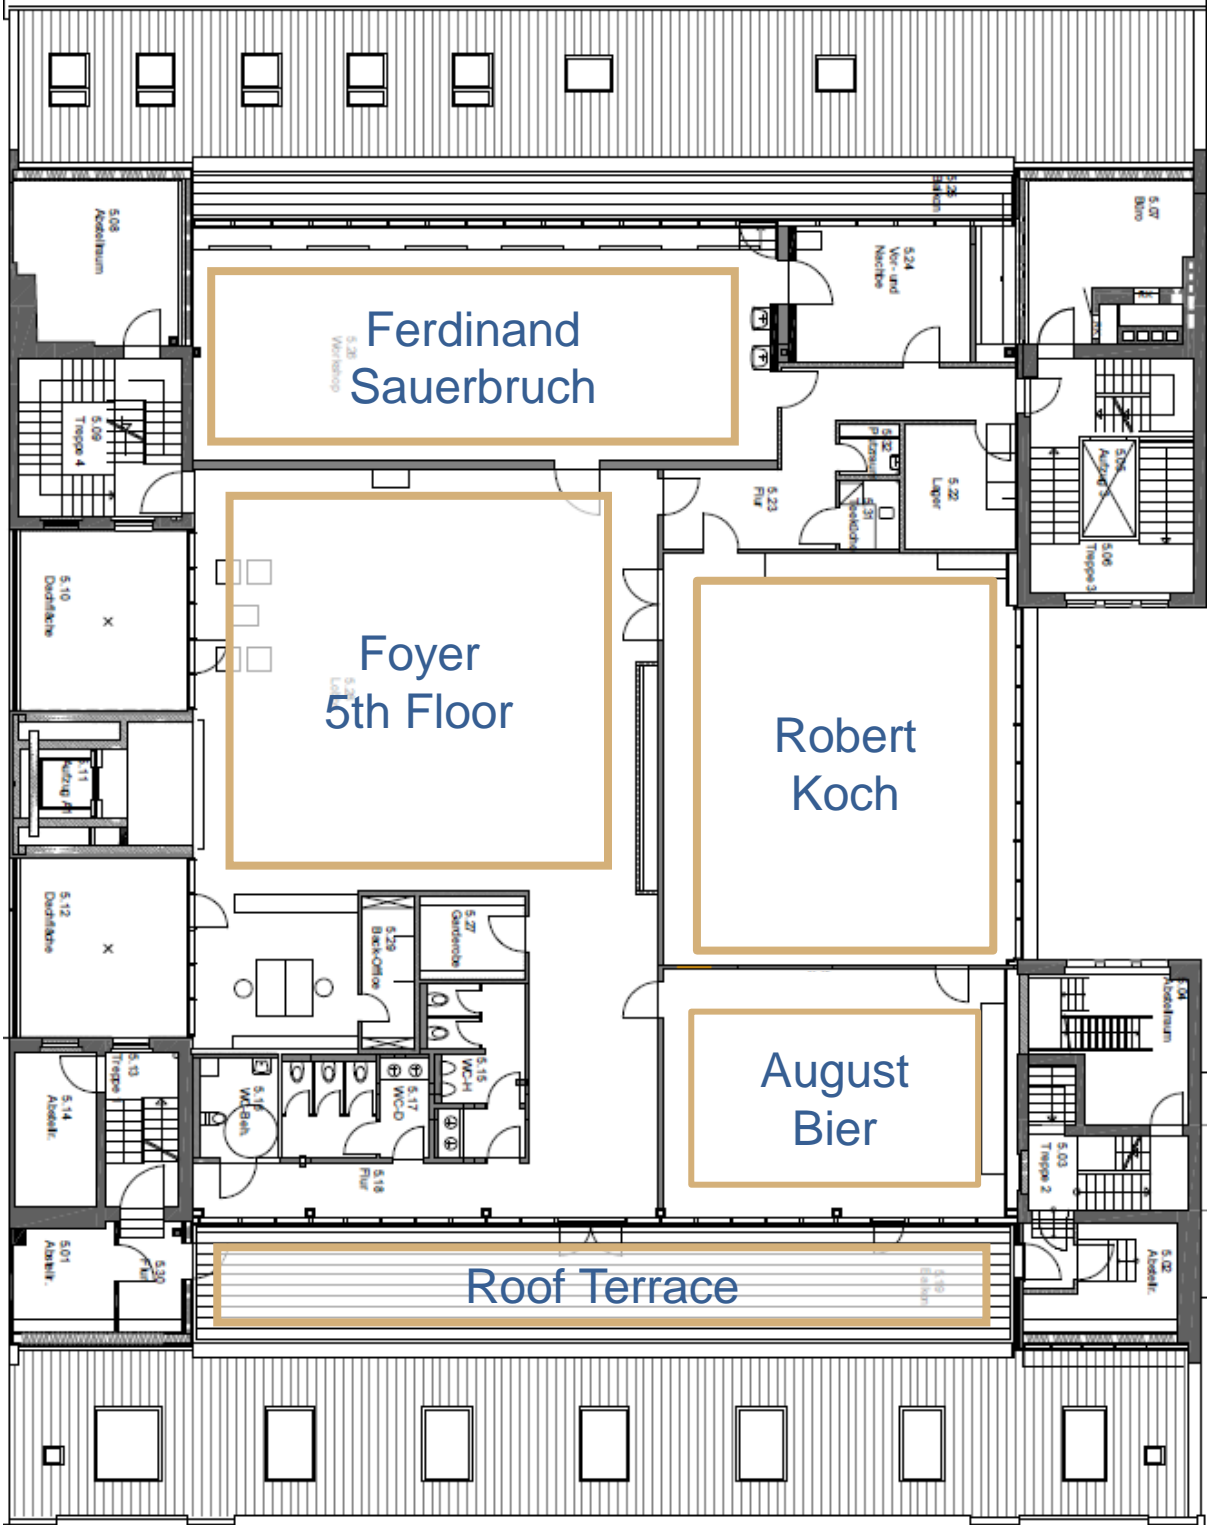

- ✓ Internet: Wi-Fi/LAN
